Introduction

This ESL game is useful for practicing a wide range of question and answer structures.

Procedure

First, each student writes a question using the target language on a piece of paper.

All the students then put their heads down and close their eyes.

Walk around the class and touch one student on the shoulder. That student is the 'Killer'.

Next, students stand up and start asking their questions to each other, marking down every time they ask their question on the back of the paper.

Give the students a few minutes to ask their questions to as many people as they can.

During the game, the killer tries to kill as many students as possible by winking at them.

If a student is killed, they go back to their seat and sit down.

When the time limit has been reached, students raise their hand according to how many times they asked their question.

The student who asked their question the most wins the round.

Play several rounds using a different question structure each time.
